

Your documents are safe with us

The documents translated on FlyingPapers often contain sensitive personal data. This is how we protect them, in plain language. Every point describes how the system works today.

1. Encrypted in transit and at rest

Every connection is encrypted with TLS, and stored files and data are encrypted with AES-256.

2. Your account, your documents

Each customer account can reach only its own documents; the rule is enforced in the database itself.

3. AI does not learn from your documents

Under the business terms of the AI services we use for translation, your documents are not used to train models.

4. Private storage, short-lived links

Files are never public. Download links issued to you expire within 60 minutes.

5. Opened only at your request

Our team opens a document only when you ask us to, for example for support, or to fix a failed translation.

6. Deletion on request

Ask us at any time and we delete your documents, including demo results.

7. Never sold, never used for ads

We do not sell your data, use it for advertising or build marketing profiles.

8. KVKK and UK GDPR

Your data protection rights apply in full. One address for every request: contact@flyingpapers.app
